TFG Systems celebrates 5 year anniversary

- Innovative software company continues to flourish

###

London, United Kingdom – Five years ago this January, TFG Systems was launched to provide a solution to frustrated hedge funds who wanted a single platform to manage their fund. TFG Complete, the flagship product, was designed to give asset managers a platform equal in technology and service to the largest financial institutions to manage all aspects of their fund, from front office PnL and risk monitoring to middle office workflow, processing and cash management.

What started out as a platform for a global macro hedge fund has now become a multi-asset system supporting hedge funds, asset managers and family offices with various strategies ranging from fixed income and equity to credit, fx, and inflation.

Martin Toyer, CEO, said “I am thrilled to be celebrating TFG Systems 5th year in business. In 2007 we decided to provide a single platform to asset managers that would give the performance measures, reporting, and level of automation and support which were more recognisable in an investment bank. Five years later, we are continuing to build our platform to support ever more assets classes and strategies. We have had an outstanding year in 2012 with a move to new offices, new staff, continuing improvement in the product as well as growing revenues. We have great support from our excellent clients without whom the product or the business would not be what it is today.”
